CYPRUS

Cyprus lays on the eastern Mediterranean Sea and has been renowned since ancient times for its mineral wealth, superb wines and produce, and natural beauty. Technically Cyprus is actually located in Asia, but it is often considered to be culturally and politically a part of Europe and it has been in the European Union since 2004. As Europe's sunniest island, Cyprus is ideal for year-round vacations and delivers every time. The fun loving people, the scenery and of course the food are all part of this sunshine havens make up. The people of Cyprus are broadly divided into two main ethnic communities, Greek Cypriots and Turkish Cypriots, who share many cultural traits but maintain distinct identities.

Beyond Paphos itself, it is only two miles to the Tombs of the Kings, a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Ktima is the main residential district while Kato Paphos, by the sea, is built around the medieval port and contains most of the luxury hotels and the entertainment infrastructure of the city.

A few of the many Attractions in Paphos

Kato Paphos Archaeology Park

You could easily spend hours pottering around this fantastic attraction close to the harbour. There are structures here that go back to prehistory, but the most famous remnants are from the Roman era. The ruins of four villas survive from this time and boast stunningly detailed mosaics, all dating to the year 100 and depicting scenes from Roman mythology. From the same era is the Ancient Odeon, a small arena that is still used by the town as a performance venue, while the Tombs of the Kings is an underground burial complex, supported by intact Doric columns and dating back 1500 years.

St Paul's Pillar

This is one of Cyprus' most significant pilgrimage sites. Back in 45 AD it wasn't a great idea to try to spread Christianity to places that didn't want it – if you were interested in self-preservation. Paul the Apostle came to Paphos to convert the ruler from Paganism, and for his efforts got 39 lashes. In the grounds of Panagia Chrysopolitissa, a handsome Orthodox/Anglican church on the site of an ancient basilica, you'll find the pillar to which the saint was tied for his punishment. The pillar has been eroded down the years but is still standing amid two millennia of ruins that include some stunning mosaics.

Aphrodite Water Park

A family-favourite for those long summer days, Aphrodite Waterpark is the largest attraction of its kind on this side of Cyprus. In all it has 17 rides and attractions with something for both the big kids and toddlers. There are four high-speed plunges for people who want to get the adrenaline pumping, including Racer, in which you face off against your friends to see who can get to the bottom of this tube ride first. More sedate is Lazy River, a mile-long float beneath waterfalls and fountains that drops you right back at your sun lounger!

Paphos Zoo

This attraction was once the private menagerie and aviary of a local businessman and animal collector, Christos Christoforou. At the turn of this century Christoforou decided to open his zoo up to the public with the aim of showing off his collection and educating visitors about animal conservation. The zoo is situated in a landscaped environment of gardens and ponds, and houses monkeys, giraffes, tigers, white lions, kangaroos, meerkats and more. The bird area is possibly the most interesting, with more than 200 species including a wide range of birds of prey.

Akamas Peninsula

In Paphos you're close enough to make a day-trip to a fabulous corner of the island. Akamas is less than an hour north along the coast and because of its rugged terrain of peaks and gorges has never been developed. The upshot is an abundance of nature, with a third of Cyprus' endemic plant species found here.
