“ The names Bond,
James Bond”

James Bond, or as he is more famously known 007 is a screen hero, we have all grown up with. Here's the chance to step into his shoes even if only for a few days and live it up Secret Agent style. You even get your own License to Thrill.

Sean Connery played the big screen's first James Bond in Dr. No (1962), a role he played an additional five times in the official series, while other actors inheriting the role have included George Lazenby, Roger Moore, Timothy Dalton, Pierce Brosnan and, most recently, Daniel Craig.

Who was the real James Bond?

James Charles Bond died in 1995, aged 89. In April 2019, his gravestone was changed from "Charles James Bond" to "James Charles Bond 007". Bond's code number—007—was assigned by Fleming in reference to one of British naval intelligence's key achievements of World War I: the breaking of the German diplomatic code.

Did You Know? The Vesper, also known as the Vesper Martini, was made famous by James Bond. The cocktail was invented by none other than Bond author Ian Fleming. The drink first appeared in his book "Casino Royale," which was published in 1953, and the cocktail is named for the fictional double agent Vesper Lynd.
